EAST BAY
COMMUNITY
LAW CENTER

2020 ANNUAL REPORT

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S LETTER

10 years ago during the subprime mortgage crisis, I was a clinical supervisor in East Bay Community Law Center (EBCLC)'s Neighborhood Justice Clinic. A majority of my work was focused on supporting African American seniors who had become homeowners despite the challenges of redlining, Jim Crow, and legal employment discrimination. It was an honor to be able to ensure that their final years were not marked by the threat of homelessness.

A decade later, I returned to EBCLC as Executive Director and found myself working within another economic recession — this time, with detrimental health implications and police violence devastating African Americans. COVID-19 has disproportionately devastated Black, Indigenous and other communities of color and fundamentally disrupted the US legal system. In this time of crisis, I am deeply grateful to be leading an organization that values collective wellbeing and heals whole people and whole communities.

While this year has presented many challenges, I am encouraged by the opportunities for change it has created. At the highest level of the US government, a direct and clear approach to ending systemic racism has been named as a top priority. Although we couldn't quite overturn California's racist affirmative action ban at the ballot box this year, our state's large and growing population of Black, Latinx, and other voters of color gives me hope for our future. "Black Lives Matter" and "Trust Black Women" have become mainstream strategies that unify and hold us accountable to our ideals.

As I look to 2021, I know that the work ahead is urgent. We have a window of time to heal and keep the momentum of the national racial justice awakening. I am energized by the new partnerships that have emerged, the long-standing relationships that have evolved, and the incredible investments that have been made to sustain these efforts. Thank you for being on this journey with us.

Onward!

Zoë Melissa Polk,
Executive Director

THE PROBLEM

Justice has never been race neutral. Our legal system was designed to uphold structural racism. It does so at the expense of our health, our families and our communities. This must end.

VISION

We envision a California where Black and Indigenous communities, and those at the intersection of multiple oppressions, are positioned to realize thriving, healthy, and dignified lives.

SANDRA JOHNSON

New Board Member

“I proudly joined EBCLC’s board this year because, as a former client, I believe in the ability of this organization to help system-impacted people enjoy the healthy, stable futures they deserve.”

MISSION

At East Bay Community Law Center (EBCLC), we advance racial justice through direct service, education and advocacy.

Direct Service: With 8 distinct practice areas driven by leading experts in housing, health, immigration, and more, EBCLC’s legal team is trained to resolve intersecting legal challenges caused by poverty and racial injustice.

Education: In partnership with Berkeley Law School, EBCLC boasts a robust clinical education program with 150 + law students annually.

Advocacy: Thanks to statewide policies written and championed by EBCLC advocates, Californians have won millions of dollars in discharged court debt, rock-solid consumer protections, and transformative civil rights for children, workers, and whole communities.

MICHAEL K. NG

Chair, Board of Directors

“For over 30 years, EBCLC has centered the racial justice value that our collective wellbeing is interdependent on each other. In the midst of all of the challenges of this incredibly difficult year, we have witnessed our value become global reality. Now more than ever, I am grateful for legal services that uplift whole communities, and that ensure housing stability, immigration relief, educational equity, health and welfare, and economic empowerment for our clients. I know that with Zoë’s bold leadership, the brilliance and compassion of the staff, and the commitment of our new and longtime board members, we will make transformational social and political shifts in the years ahead. Your support for EBCLC is an investment in this vision.”

KEY VICTORIES 2020

Our three-pronged strategy to impact lasting, systemic change proved even more crucial in the face of this devastating pandemic:

COMMUNITY ORGANIZING

Alameda County Eviction Moratorium Ordinance: Keeps approx. 800,000 East Bay residents housed and represents the nation's longest and strongest COVID-19-related eviction ban.

STATEWIDE LEGISLATION

Families Over Fees Act/AB 1869: Brings widespread economic relief to 39 million Californians, especially Black and brown people targeted by mass incarceration by eliminating criminal justice system fees.

HIGH-IMPACT COURT CASES

Sanchez v. Caltrans: Wins $5.5 million for people living in homeless encampments whose property was destroyed and protects them from future sweeps.

OUT OF EBCLC'S 81 FULL-TIME STAFF:

66% are renters

70% live in the communities EBCLC serves

65% are people of color

35% are caregivers for family members

26% are LGBTQIA

100% took advantage of EBCLC Wellness Days to rest, restore, and spend time with family

MICHELLE NATIVIDAD RODRIGUEZ

New Board Member

“If we’re going to have success in stabilizing our communities, we have to uplift the efforts of Black-led organizations such as EBCLC that are on the ground doing the work. I’m proud to join the board at this moment as we lean into and prioritize our racial justice roots.”

THEO CUISON

Director, Immigration Practice

“While most courts closed this year in response to COVID-19, immigration courts have remained open, and despite the danger, our staff and students have shown up to make the case for our clients’ humanity in deportation proceedings, affirmative asylum interviews, defensive asylum hearings, and other interactions with the Department of Homeland Security.”

TANYA LOFTIN

Administrative Assistant

“Now that COVID-19 has moved us to remote services, our phone lines are our clients’ lifelines, and the fact that people going through the toughest times in their lives have entrusted EBCLC with their issues means so much to me and the rest of the administrative team.”

WHO WE ARE: Our Students and Alums

ALEX FAY

Student, Clean Slate Clinic

“The urgent problems of policing and police funding go hand in hand with racist systems of court and municipal debt. EBCLC’s Clean Slate Clinic has given me skills to advocate for racial justice and the decriminalization of poverty.”

ANYA KU

Law Clerk at U.S. District Court,
Northern District of California

“My real-world experience from EBCLC was one of the reasons I got my clerkship, and now I see why: More than just technical lawyering expertise, I gained communication, management, and community-building skills that I apply every day. Knowing first-hand how the outcomes of cases can affect people takes my work from intellectual stimulation to an avenue for meaningful change.”

WHO WE ARE: Our Student Board Members

KENNEDY ROSE

Student Board Member

“In my work fighting displacement and protecting the health and dignity of transgender clients, I’ve so admired the unique connectedness between EBCLC and the surrounding community.”

STEPHANIE TILDEN

Student Board Member

“I have found it deeply motivating to join the board this year and to give back to an organization that does so much to train the next generation of public interest lawyers.”

ELLEN IVENS-DURAN

Student Board Member

“My work with EBCLC’s Health & Welfare Clinic and the Education, Defense, & Justice for Youth team has cemented my desire to pursue a career in public defense.”

CONNECTION AND COMMUNITY

With your help, EBCLC opened its digital doors this year to keep our community empowered and informed, hold elected officials accountable, amplify our policy solutions and celebrate our brilliant students.

6,885

of you engaged with us on digital platforms this year.

JESSICA BUENDIA

New Board Member

“By investing in EBCLC, our partners in philanthropy, government, and the corporate sector have an opportunity to advance real innovation at a moment when the status quo model of service delivery just won’t cut it anymore.”

EBCLC ADVOCACY TO KEEP COMMUNITIES SAFE DURING COVID-19

- Halt evictions to keep families in place
- Allow people to access their public benefits remotely
- Accommodate people who cannot come to traffic court
- Preserve the health and safety of encampment residents
- Pause debt collection through wage garnishments and bank levies
- Stop in-person group meetings for Welfare-to-Work Benefits
- Stop towing vehicles, so sick people don't lose their primary asset
- Reaffirm our Sanctuary City commitment to undocumented people and all immigrants
- Reduce the number of youth in custody and ensure that youth in custody are cared for

= Solution Secured     = Work in progress

IN THE NEWS

EBCLC’s innovative racial justice lawyering strategies were featured in major publications all over the country this year. Thanks to your support, our message has reached thousands of readers, our ideas have influenced key decision-makers, and our movement for change is growing.

EASHA ANAND

New Board Member

“After interning at EBCLC as a student, I’m proud to now leverage my position as a board member to ensure that today’s Berkeley Law students are equipped with the crucial skills I gained, and that racial and social justice continue to be prioritized by the law school.”

THANK YOU

Our work is possible because of your investment. We extend deep appreciation to the following individuals, foundations, law firms, and businesses who contributed to EBCLC between July 1, 2019 and October 15, 2020.
